PACIFIST POISON

MANY well-meaning citizens may think that a pacifist in congress cannot do much harm now that the country is well into the war and the defeat of Germany inevitable. These forget to consider the future. Already there are signs that the government of the kaiser is preparing for a new peace move, and that this will be an offer to restore Belgium, the occupied portions of France, perhaps also Alsace and Lorraine, and to pay indemnities in exchange for Russia.

It will be then that the peril of the pacifist will again confront us, for nothing can prevent the success of this country and her allies in their war aims—the defeat of Prussian militarism—except a recovery of influence by the gathering of very varied emotions known as “pacifism.” With the serious renewal of pacifistic efforts, which will follow inevitably from Germany's waning war strength, the pacifists of the United States might easily do more harm to the cause for which we are at war than the kaiser himself.

It is not necessary to fear the effect of the signals for “peace” which Germany will display, for the majority of Americans will appraise them at their true lack of worth. But what we may well fear will be the signals compounded of camouflaged virtue and sentiment with which the pacifists and secret pro-Germans will seek to appeal to our “higher instincts” and our “humanity.” Among these perils of democracy are such pacifists as Congressman Roberts, who aspires to the U. S. senate. Many communities are eliminating the pro-German poison; it will be up to Nevada to eliminate Roberts.

CREDIT WHERE CREDIT IS DUE

TONOPAH has earned a nation wide reputation for loyalty in taking care of those going to join the colors and the honor is deserved. It makes no difference whether one or a dozen boys leave for the post of duty citizens have turned out in a body led by the band of the Musicians' Union and the Tonopah Drum corps. Without these adjuncts the demonstration would fall flat. There would be no zip or pep to arouse enthusiasm and the march to the depot would be no better than a funeral cortege highly suggestive of the dismal possibilities of the battlefield. When the news of victory floated in from far off lands the first call was upon the band to turn out and arouse citizens to a celebration. In fact the brunt of the hurrah end of the demonstrations has been unloaded on the shoulders of a few men who have cheerfully given their time and talents to the great cause of stimulating warfare activities. The band boys have helped in Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., Blue Cross and Knights of Columbus drives and thereby brought substantial results to the war chest. Yet, in spite of this obvious activity which is well known, it probably has not occurred to anybody that all these contributions were wholly voluntary, without thought of pay and, frequently at great personal sacrifice. The musicians of Tonopah are entitled to the thanks of the community for they have been the heart strings of every patriotic display that has needed some suitable impulse to give emphatic endorsement to the work of the council of defense. How many citizens have thought of the musicians' union in this light? How many understand that to escort a solitary volunteer to the depot a dozen men have cheerfully deprived themselves of three or four hours sleep? The question may not have presented itself in that way to your imagination but that is the cold fact. The band is composed of men who work for a living. In order to distribute the duty of entertaining departing delegates the union ordained that the members not actually engaged in work should respond to all calls and the spontaneous manner in which this response was met needs no fulsome eulogy. The response has been prompt and whole-souled. For the morning parades men who came off in the early morning shift gave up their sleeping hours to make the demonstrations a success. In the evenings the same rule obtained. In this manner the entire twenty-four hours were covered and the council of defense never had cause to complain of remissness on the part of the band or drum corps. They were on the job all the time. They ask for no recognition and no member is aware that the Bonanza this afternoon is placing the credit where it belongs. Citizens of Tonopah should understand the situation and, when the proper time comes, they should manifest their appreciation in its fullest sense. Therefore, it is hats off to the band of the Musicians' Union and the Tonopah Drum corps. They are the 150 per cent patriots of the camp.

OH, CONSISTENCY!

IT is said that the Germans are protesting against the use of shotguns by the American army. Then, by all means, Sammies, stop it at once! If you must be cruel, temper your inhumanity with gentleness; use gas and liquid fire; invent a big Bertha with which to bomb churches and hospitals, fly over Red Cross camps and drop bombs on the nurses and the injured, poison the drinking wells of the enemy, nail babies to the walls of their homes, cut the hands off innocent children, rape and pillage and burn, scatter infectious diseases among the noncombatant population in the enemy country—but, for sweet mercy's sake, never descend so low as to use a shotgun on an armed boche!—Los Angeles Times.

One of the Hearst papers asks “Who subsidized the female disturbers?” referring to the White House picketers. Then a leader of the anti-suffragists comes forward with the information that in a list of subscribers to the National Women's party funds to the amount of $1204, the largest subscription is that of $1000 by William Randolph Hearst. Does that answer the question?

George Creel has at last achieved his niche in the Hall of American Letters. Several newspapers have been using the expression “creeling” as a synonym for distortion of the truth. The word will ultimately, no doubt, be included in the dictionaries of the future. So much for fame. Creel now takes his place with Captain Boycott and Lynch of Virginia.

GEN. HOWZE BRINGS AN ERA OF GOOD FEELING TO BORDER

(By Associated Press)

EL PASO, Tex., Aug. 30.—General Howze's era of good feeling along the Mexican border is the way the past three months period is referred to by residents of the frontier.

When Brigadier General Howze assumed command here there were 6000 Mexican troops opposite the Big Bend district. Raids, sniping affrays and cattle stealings occurred nightly. Ranches were raided, Americans killed and their property carried away by the Mexicans.

With the assistance of Colonel George T. Langhorne, commander of the Big Bend district, General Howze has succeeded in restoring law and order along the border. He ordered shooting affrays investigated, fixed the responsibility and, if his own men were at fault, he disciplined them. If the Mexicans were at fault, he called the incident to the attention of the Juarez military authori-

Through the efforts of the Mexican consul general, Andres Garcia, General Howze has arranged for an exchange of deserters from the two armies, he has extended courtesies to officials of the Mexican government visiting El Paso, to the Mexican editors touring the United States, to the governor of Chihuahua and has arranged for an exchange of friendly calls with General Francisco Murgula, commander of the north-eastern military zone of Mexico.

ABOLISH DOMESTIC SCIENCE AND MANUAL WORK, SAYS STATE COUNCIL

George L. Dilworth, delegate appointed by the Nye County Council of Defense to attend the state educational conference, has submitted a report covering the work of the session from which the following extracts are taken:

“The sessions of the conference and the meetings of the resolutions committee were very interesting and I believe movements were put on foot that may assist in maintaining the efficiency of the schools up to the highest standard of usefulness during the period of the war, and also enable them to meet the new demands placed upon them because of war conditions. A critical condition confronts the schools of the country because of the withdrawal from the teaching profession of thousands of teachers and school administrators either to enter government service direct or to enter other lines of endeavor at present paying much higher salaries than is paid in the teaching profession. It is impossible to meet the competition of other industries without raising the salary schedule throughout the country in accordance with the advance in the cost of living and in comparison with the increase in salaries in other industries. It is equally impossible to raise the salary schedule and meet the enormous increase in expense of all books and supplies of every nature necessary to the maintenance of the schools with a revenue provided only to meet pre-war conditions. These conditions and how to meet them, how to meet the changing conditions in educational affairs, how to maintain the schools at their highest efficiency, how to keep the boys and girls in school, as so strongly urged by President Wilson, Secretary Lane, and Commissioner Claxton, were subjects all too important to go into with the thoroughness they deserve. Resolutions were adopted expressing the utmost confidence in the conduct of the war and urging a prosecution of the war with the greatest vigor until a victorious peace can be achieved and absolute safety be secured for democracy for all time; approving of the plans for bringing to the high schools from the university such work as outlined in the addresses of Dean Knight and Professor Norcross; calling attention to the urgent need of maintaining the schools at their highest efficiency; urging on the state department of education and the state council of defense the necessity of taking action to secure the legislative action necessary to procure sufficient funds to make possible the maintenance of efficiency under ever increasing expenses; approving of the work of the Junior Red Cross in the schools and suggesting that the state board of education take action to permit schools to substitute this work for the manual training and domestic science outlined in the state course of study; urging the necessity for teaching thorough Americanism in the schools in all departments; and suggesting the appointment of an educational committee to work with the state council of defense in considering what legislation may be necessary to put the foregoing resolutions in effect. The governor will announce the appointment of such a committee within the next few days.”

The Noyes gift of $3,000,000 to Chicago university to be used in special training and education of returning soldiers is a form of philanthropy that must needs be enlarged and commended.
